9. Narrative description of the threat and the subsequent action taken:

On March 3, 2009 D/Mass Springfield Office was notified by [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] had received a letter from inmate Michael Crooker. (Crooker has written [REDACTED] in the past.) But [REDACTED] was somewhat concerned about this particular letter. Crooker is serving 22 years on a silencer charge and faces additional charges (he's under indictment) on Weapons of Mass Destruction charges. But he also has a possibility of being released if he wins an appeal of the original case and that would also effect his WMD charges also, (Fruits of the Poisonous Tree Doctrine). His case was heard before the U.S Court of Appeals First Circuit on March 4, 2009.

Out of a tremendous amount of caution the USMS has taken the position that Crooker's most recent letter is being treated as an Inappropriate Communication since [REDACTED] nervous about the letter.

There does not appear to be any threat veiled or otherwise in the I.C.
